

KIBOU'S LIGHT

STEFANIA MAGGI & MCKENNA CORVELLO

This publication would have not seen the light had it not been for the meaningful contribution of many friends and colleagues who have participated in Mochi4ThePlanet.

Special thanks go to Andrea Mancuso and Yvonne Duniluck for early conceptualizations of the Mochis. Riccardo Carusi for giving life to these outwardly creatures with his brilliant concept art. Sebastiano Pocchi for his thoughtful and creative contribution to the broader narrative upon which this story is based and continues evolving. Emanuele Costanzo for the 3D design of the Mochi characters and the evocative Mother Tree. Akash Roy for his extraordinary leadership in developing assets and mechanics for what will soon become Kibou | The Guiding Light, the video game. Sourav Bhadra for his 2D design of environmental assets. And Francesco Chilardi for his expressive 2D designs of the many Mochis, so colourful and full of emotions.

Twenty-five point two million light-years
from Earth's embrace

In Fireworks Galaxy's
boundless space...

There's Kibou...

A planet so big and
rounded that when you see it you'll be
astounded

On Kibou, is where you'll find the Mochis

Little creatures once happy and cozy.

But their happiness
and coziness is now
at stake

Because to a big problem they'll have
to wake.

Oh, what a fuss,
Kibou's light is fading,
dwindling at last!

Mochis are scared,
they're starting to
weep

For nature's wrath,
rose from Her
sleep.

As floods and
tornadoes sweep
through their land

They go into hiding
with their head in the sand

But even inside from their hiding place

They cannot avoid feeling haze and
disgrace

One day they see their feelings where
empathy lies

In the mirror of other Mochis' eyes.

That's how they knew not alone they were

Which gave them the courage to go out
and share.

To save their planet,
what can they do?

A question that's puzzling, both me and you.

Perhaps they'll plant
trees and clean the
air

Protect the oceans
with love and care.

Mochis can recycle,
reduce, and reuse,

Conserve the water
and energy...they'll choose.

Teach others to
cherish the land so
dear

For in unity's
strength, there's nothing to fear.

With each small step,
they'll make a
change

Their world they'll restore and
rearrange.

So, let's join Mochis,
hand in hand

Protect our Earth,
just like they planned.

For in the end, we all must see

It's up to us to keep our planet's glee.

With love and action,
we'll make it right

And Kibou will shine in eternal light.
